

Is this what happens between gear-faces or roller bearing elements? NO!!!! For two reasons:

- baseballs are much softer than the wooden bat so they deform much more than the bat
- this is a dynamic loading situation where the force is the result of decelerating/accelerating the mass of the ball